Remember: o auxiliar do simple past é o "Did". Somente na afirmative sentences os verbos estarão no passado! Quando for interrogative sentences, usamos o "Did" e o verbo na base form. Em negative sentences, usamos o "didn't" e o verbo na base form.

Complete the chart in the exercise 3.

Go to the page 170 (Grammar Helper), do the exercises 1 and 2.

Go back to the page 50, exercise 4. You're going to complete the Malala's biography with the verbs from the box. Who is Malala Yousafzai? What do you know about her?

In exercise 5, you're going to use the words given and make interrogative sentences about Malala and then answer them according to the text in exercise 4.

Watch the video about Past Continuous x Simple Past:

https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=Dpsu_XSwX4k

O past continuous tem a função de expressar uma ação no passada que estava em andamento. Já o Simple past é usado para ações que começaram e foram concluídas no passado. Quando utilizamos os dois verb tenses juntos numa mesma sentença, geralmente usamos "When" or "While" , para indicar que uma ação estava em andamento (past continuous) quando uma outra ação aconteceu ou interrompeu (simple past). Usa-se o "when" antes do simple past e "while" antes do past continuous.

Go to the Grammar Helper, page 171. Complete the exercise 3 with when or while.

Go back to the page 51, complete the chart in exercise 8 and make sentences in exercise 9.

Fun time: Cup song challenge (optional)

Have you heard about "Cup song"?

The original song "When I'm Gone" was written by A. P. Carter, then recorded in 1931 by the Carter Family (not to be confused with their 1928 song "Will You Miss Me When I'm Gone?").¹ The song was reworked in 1937 by J. E. Mainer. Over the years it has been recorded by many people including Mainer's Mountaineers and Charlie Monroe. In 1940 it was released by Elizabeth Cotten, a vocalist and guitar player. It can also be heard in the film Dan in Real Life.

Lulu and the Lamphshades were the first to perform the song using the cup game for percussion. Anna Burden made her own version on YouTube of the Lulu and the Lamphshades video that was discovered by Reddit, and where Anna Kendrick learned the routine, prompting dozens of other YouTube users to submit cover versions of the song using the Cup Clap technique. It was soon dubbed The Cup Song.

The song is also used for the theme song for the BBC Two sitcom 'Mum' starring Lesley Manville.
